CONSERVING LAND FOR LOCAL COMMUNITIES

I believe one of the most important qualities of living on the Lower Shore is the rural lifestyle. The LSLT partners with land-owners and communities to protect and conserve the region's green space.

The LSLT Board held a planning retreat at the Karen Noonan Center for Environmental Education on February 28 and March 1, 2014. Spicer Bell of Focus Management Group facilitated the discussion, while Robyn Carlton of Lookout Mountain Conservancy in Tennessee offered strategies for community engagement. The inspiring location provided a great backdrop for thoughtful dialogue and the Board is drafting a new roadmap that will ensure we have green space that supports farming, wildlife habitat and healthy waterways for everyone!

Catch the Buzz! Upcoming LSLT Events Promote Habitats for Pollinators!

Native plants aren't just another pretty flower. Landscaping with plants that are accustomed to local growing conditions generally require less maintenance, but more important, they provide food and shelter for native pollinators and other wildlife.

Saturday, April 26—11 AM—Noon

Michael Embrey, Program Manager of the Eastern Shore Apiculture Program will give a talk on native bees, habitat requirements and resources for these native pollinators. The event will be held at Pemberton Park in the education building. Immediately following the talk, Pemberton Park is holding a cleanup event and installing an organic garden.

Wednesday, April 30—4:30—6:00 PM

Katelin Frase from Environmental Concern presents "Habitat Design Projects for Educators and Community Members". The event will be held at the Salisbury University Alumni House. The program is free but reservations are recommended. Refreshments will be served!

Saturday, May 10—9 AM—1 PM

Native Plant Festival & Sale at the Ward Museum! Join the Lower Shore Land Trust and learn about growing native plants from master gardeners. Enjoy an exhibit by the Lower Eastern Shore Beekeepers Association, make a Mother's Day craft, explore the grounds of the Ward Museum and take advantage of the museum store yard sale! The Ward Museum's current exhibit Lessons Not Learned, bringing attention to endangered and extinct species.
